

Fuel Surcharge Policy

Due to ongoing volatility in diesel fuel prices, Dividing Farm Trucking has implemented a temporary fuel surcharge program.

Fuel is one of the largest operating costs in transportation. Rather than adjusting base hauling rates, this surcharge allows us to respond fairly and transparently to changing fuel prices.

The surcharge is calculated using publicly available diesel pricing data from the U.S. Energy Information Administration (EIA). Each load is evaluated based on the fuel price at the time of delivery, a long-term baseline fuel cost, and the mileage required for the delivery.

If fuel prices exceed the baseline, a surcharge may be applied. If fuel prices are at or below the baseline, no surcharge is applied.

This approach ensures that:

- Base hauling rates remain stable and predictable
- Surcharges reflect real market conditions
- Customers are treated fairly and consistently

This surcharge is temporary and will be adjusted or removed as fuel prices stabilize.
